The Old Testament alludes to what would later become the Synoptic Gospels, in particular the account of the transfiguration of Jesus in Matthew 17:1-9 and the account of the feeding of the 5000 in Mark 6:31-44 and Luke 9:12-17. Archaeological evidence suggests that Jerusalem was still inhabited until the 3rd century CE, when the Antonine Wall was constructed to stop the Roman army from invading northern Israel. The Calendars Common Era (CE) is the current designation for the year AD 1. Before the Common Era began in 1 CE, calendar dates were based on the birth or naming of the reigning Roman emperor and are in the regnal year system. The Common Era began on January 1. 1 AD is now the approximate midpoint between Julius Caesar and Claudius. To mark the end of the common era, 1 was followed by 2 (January – December) and 3 (January – June). The contemporary era (CE) started in 1 CE and ended in the year 2100 CE. Contemporary era (CE) starts on January 1 and the last year of the 21st century is 2100 CE (two thousand years after 1 CE). The year AD/BC/CE is still used in various situations. The year AD/BC/CE is used in book titles, for example, The New Testament (for the first three gospels) and The Old Testament, as well as for year numbering in articles and for paper currency. Numbers Roman Numerals The present Roman numeral system is based on the principle that the value of a number is determined by the total number of symbols in the number. Roman numerals were used in the Western world from the third century BCE until the eighteenth century CE. They were replaced in the nineteenth century by Arabic numerals (see below). Since AD 0 is the only number before 1 that uses Roman numerals, it is common to call 2, 3, 4, ..., and 9 "the natural numbers". Numbers are written with a normal Roman alphabetical letter. Therefore "I" is 1 and "II" is 2. I, III, 3e33713323
